David Kondrup was a 3 Star Chief with a 1,260 person law enforcement agency serving a suburban community of 1.3 million residents adjacent to New York City where he also served as the Director of Human Resources and as the NIMS and Incident Command Liaison to the County's Office of Emergency Management. He served over twenty years with the New York City Police Department where he supervised and commanded personnel in a variety of mission critical assignments, and developed and executed technology, continuity and contingency plans.

Board certified in Security Management, CPP (Certified Protection Professional) by ASIS International. Master of Science Degree from Long Island University, a Bachelor of Science degree from the New York Institute of Technology, and he is a 1981 graduate of the NYPD Police Academy. Kondrup is also certified by DRii to teach Business Continuity Course BCLE1500, certified by DHS to teach NIMS & Incident Command (ICS) courses, and he holds a Senior Professional in Human Resources certification (SPHR) from the Human Resources Certification Institute and a senior certification in HR from SHRM.

During the course of his career Chief Kondrup has served as an incident commander at numerous events including blackouts, hazmat and hostage situations. He has also served in a variety of General Staff and Command Staff positions for expanding incidents including natural and man-made disasters such as Nor'easter storms, blizzards, bombings and civil disturbances, as well as implementing new technology and business reorganizations. He has been awarded 20 medals for bravery, professional service, intelligent and exemplary work. As a Lieutenant, Kondrup designed the NYPD Purple Shield Medal (1995) the NYPD version of the Purple Heart.

Chief Kondrup has held positions in the private sector as a Director of Business Resiliency and Incident Response, as a Corporate Director of Facilities Management for a firm with 17 sites in the metropolitan New York City area, and as a Manager of Security Operations for a division of the New York and American Stock Exchanges where he was involved with infrastructure protection, (including bomb detection), the setup of Emergency Command Centers, Continuity of Operations and the testing of Business Contingency Plans.

Kondrup was the lead instructor overseeing NIMS, Incident Command and WMD courses at a law enforcement training academy and he is a visiting lecturer and speaker at universities. He has trained over 2,500 people for incident response and business resiliency. He serves on a number of college advisory boards for Business Continuity, Management, Security, and Law Enforcement courses.

Kondrup is a Life Member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) and since 1985 a member and former Board Officer of the American Academy for Professional Law Enforcement.
